Joaquín París was born in Galicia (Spain) in 1981. In the pre-Internet age, his hobbies were playing war games with his friends, chasing all kinds of bugs, building log cabins, drawing, drawing ... and redrawing. He is a self-trained illustrator, although he studied graphic design at the prestigious Ramón Falcón School in Lugo, the city where he lives. His drawings are normally meant for children and the young, and he likes new challenges and works using different styles and techniques.
