

Based in the UK, Niall lives on the edge of the Pennines in the North of England with his wife and two grown up daughters. Niall is a British illustrator with 39 years of industry experience, working with clients across the UK, US, Europe and further afield. Working both traditionally and digitally, Niall supplies a wide range of illustration styles used in education, publishing and the toy/games market. Along with creating art styles to suit specific briefs he is also an accurate copy artist with the ability to match existing styles across any subject matter. In addition, Niall has an excellent working knowledge of a wide range of licensed characters

